Thriving in a cold and infinite universe where everything is done better, cheaper, and faster by robots

You Are a Human

Because you are a human, you have some abilities and not others. You can't fly with your arms, or live forever, but you can share complex thoughts with others, cry when you're sad, paint some colors on the wall and call it "art," and build a doghouse. It's better to enjoy being a human, because you won't be one forever.
